SUMMER SOLSTICE

SPOTLIGHT ON SUMMER SOLSTICE—IT'S ALL ABOUT THE SUN

Friday, June 20 is the Summer Solstice which marks the first day of summer. In the Northern Hemisphere, it is also the day of the longest daylight hours. After June 20, the days will become shorter until the shortest day of the year on the Winter Solstice, December 21. Here are facts you may not know about the Summer Solstice:

First Solstice of the year

Solstices happen twice a year in June and December. The June solstice happens around June 21, when the Sun is directly over the Tropic of Cancer. The December Solstice takes place around December 21 when the Sun is precisely over the Tropic of Capricorn.

When the Sun seems to stand still

Solstice comes from the Latin words sol meaning sun and sistere, meaning to come to a stop or stand still. On the day of the June Solstice, the Sun reaches its northernmost position. At that moment, it the highest point does not move north or south as during most other days of the year, but it stands still at the Tropic of Cancer. It then reverses its direction and starts moving south again. The opposite happens during the December Solstice when the Sun reaches its southernmost position in the sky at the Tropic of Capricorn. It stands still and then reverses its direction towards the north.

It occurs at the same time all over the world

Technically, the June solstice is the exact instant of time when the Sun is directly overhead the Tropic of Cancer. In 2025, this happens on June 21 at 02:42 UTC (coordinated universal time).

It can be on June 20, 21 or 22

While most people consider June 21 as the date of the June Solstice, it can occur on the preceding or following date. June 22 solstices are rare. The last June 22 solstice was in 1975 and there won't be another one until 2203.

The Earth is farthest from the Sun

One might think that since it is summer in the Northern Hemisphere, the Earth is closest to the Sun during the June Solstice. But it's the opposite. The Earth is actually farthest from the Sun during this time of the year. The Earth's distance from the Sun has very little effect over the seasons. Instead, it's the tilt of Earth's rotational axis, which is angled at around 23.4 degrees, that creates seasons.

The earliest sunrise of the year doesn't happen on this day

Even though the June Solstice is the longest day in the Northern Hemisphere, most places do not see the earliest sunrise of the year on this day. The earliest sunrise happens a few days before and the latest sunset takes place a few days after the June Solstice.

The Arctic Circle has 24 Hours of daylight

The June Solstice is the only day of the year when all locations inside the Arctic Circle experience a continuous period of daylight for 24 hours. Due to atmospheric refraction, the Midnight Sun is visible for a few days before and on the June Solstice from areas as far as 60 miles south of the Arctic Circle. As one moves further north of the Arctic Circle, the number of days with the Midnight Sun increase. In the Antarctic Circle, there are 24 hours of nighttime on the June Solstice. Just as with the Northern Hemisphere, any location south of the Antarctic Circle has Polar Night several days before the June Solstice.

GEOLOGIST AT LARGE-

Know what you're looking at; not just what you're looking for.

By Luis Vega

South of Watson Lake, Yukon Territory, Canada, there is a famous occurrence of jade. In the late 1890s, after the Klondike rush had run its course, prospectors combed the mountains looking for more gold strikes. Some of the miners were of Chinese descent and recognized a large occurrence of jade. Other nationalities, not having a tradition of jade, did not know the value of that particular rock.

Jade has been used since the neolithic period to make tools and jewelry. Several cultures are known for their beautiful art work in jade including the Mayan, Aztec and most notably, the Chinese. The Chinese took jade carvings to a very fine art and there are valuable pieces of ancient jade art found in many museums.

The Chinese Klondike miners worked the Watson Lake jade deposit and shipped it as ballast (extra weight placed low in ships to lower the center of gravity) on ships returning to China. They made fortunes before anyone caught on. If you're looking to strike it rich prospecting, you better know what has value and not only the commodity you're looking for.

When I was working in Columbia, South America, I heard a somewhat similar story. When the Spanish were working placer gold deposits in the 1600 and 1700s, their sluice boxes were constantly being plugged by silvery colored nuggets that weren't gold or silver but heavy, just like gold. They didn't know what the heavy mineral was but because it was such a nuisance, they gathered the troublesome silvery material, placed it in barrels and used it for ship ballast. The ships would sail down the large rivers from the mining areas and when they made it to the ocean, the barrels were thrown overboard. Bad idea. The heavy, silvery material was platinum.

Today there is a roadside rock shop next to the highway south of Watson Lake, Canada, called Jade City, that has spectacular specimens of jade. I went crazy looking at all the rocks but could only afford a fist-sized sample for my rock collection. When I told them I gave talks to school kids, they were nice enough to give me another sample of jade so that I could explain how it's formed.

Jade is a general term for a group of metamorphic minerals. These minerals are formed under high pressure and low temperature in oceanic material being subducted under a continental margin. Of course, you need the right chemical composition of the oceanic crust. As it's squeezed, it's metamorphosed into the minerals jadeite - a sodium and aluminum pyroxene, or; nephrite- a calcium and magnesium rich amphibole.

In my prospecting career, I always tried to study and research the commodity I was looking for. But, I also kept an open mind for what had value. While working for a gold company in South America, my exploration team discovered a copper occurrence. Because it wasn't gold, the company decided to drop the claims and even though we pleaded with the company to hang onto them or for them to sell us the claims, management was adamant. They were a gold company and copper didn't fit into the company's portfolio of properties. They dropped the claims. No sooner than the claims became vacant, another company grabbed them and drilled what has become a large undeveloped copper resource worth billions.

There have been prospectors that were smart enough to recognize that even though a commodity is not valuable at the time they found it, there was a possibility it would in the future. Molybdenum, moly for short, is a case in point. In 1879, Charles Senter discovered a deposit of a gray mineral, (molybdenite- the ore of moly) high up in the Colorado Rockies that neither he nor anyone else could identify. Senter suspected that he had something important so he held on to the claims until he sold them and was able to retire on the proceeds. It wasn't until 1914, the start of World War I, that metallurgists learned the Germans were alloying moly with steel to produce a very hard steel plate and were using it in battle tanks. The Climax Moly mine went into production in 1915.

Mineral Park, the mine north of Kingman in the Cerbat Mountains, produces four commodities; copper, moly, silver and turquoise gem stone. Several of the years I worked there, the price of copper fell and it was the moly that kept us profitable.

I am sure the Chinese miners of the Canadian jade deposit would be smiling. Know what you're looking for and know what is valuable or someone else will eat your lunch.

FIREWORKS IN MOHAVE COUNTY

Due to critical fire weather conditions, Mohave County has enacted fire restrictions for all Fire Zones within the unincorporated areas of the county. These restrictions took effect 8:00 a.m. on May 23, 2025 and will remain in place until further notice.

The restrictions prohibit all open fires, campfires and the use of permissible consumer fireworks in the unincorporated areas of Mohave County. This action is authorized under Mohave County Ordinance 2013-04 and is designed to reduce the risk of human-caused wildfires during a period of extreme fire danger. Violations of this proclamation are a Class 2 misdemeanor under county ordinance and are subject to fines up to $750 and/or up to four months in jail.

Fireworks are prohibited in all National Parks. Since Meadview is located inside the Lake Mead National Recreation Area, fireworks are prohibited under the Park Service rules. If fireworks are a must for you to celebrate Independence Day, the city of Kingman will put on a firework display at the Mohave County Fairgrounds starting at 9:15 pm. The gates open at 5:00 pm. The display can also be seen from Firefighter Memorial Park, Centennial Park and other places around the city.

ANTHONY’S SPORTS CORNER

The NBA Finals are underway with the Oklahoma City Thunder playing against the Indiana Pacers. The Indiana Pacers won Game 6 to force winner-take-all in Game 7 that will be on Sunday. I still believe that the winner will be the Indiana Pacers. This has been an exciting championship series so far and probably one of the best finals in a long time. Neither team has ever won the National Championship. Indiana made the NBA playoffs in 2000, but never won.
 it would be a good thing to see a new team win.

The Florida Panthers won the NHL Stanley Cup Championship. This a back-to-back Championship for them. That has only been done 16 times in NHL Stanley Cup Finals.

The Arizona Diamondbacks are in 4th place in the NL West Division with a record of 36-35. The LA Dodgers are in 1st place in the NL West Division with a record of 46-29. The Atlanta Braves are in 3rd Place in the NL East Division with a Record of 33-39. NY Yankees are in the 1st place in the AL East Division with 42-31 record. The Chicago Cubs are in 1st place in the NL Central Division with a 45-28 record. The Detroit Tigers have the best record in baseball with a record of 47-27 putting them in 1st place in the AL Central Division. We still have alot of baseball season to go.

We are getting close to the All Star game which means the season is half over. The All-Star Game will be played on July 15 in Atlanta, Georgia.

NASCAR will be racing in Pocono, Pennsylvania at the Pocono Raceway on June 22. Then, they will travel to Atlanta to race at the Atlanta Motor Speedway on June 28.

In the WNBA, the Indiana Fever team is in 3rd place in the Eastern Conference with a record of 6-5. The Phoenix Mercury team is in 2nd place in the Western Conference with a record of 9-4.

Men’s College Baseball World Series is still being played. We should know who will win the College Championship in the next issue.

Congratulations to Texas for winning the 2025 College Softball World Series.

As always, you can watch your favorite sporting events at The Fisherman’s Landing Bar. Until the next issue, keep watching sports, my friends.
